

Verre Culturen Toen en Nu met de Etnografische Vereniging Delft

Informatie: www.verreculturendelft.nl ; e-mail: postmaster@verreculturendelft.nl

Secretariaat: Wielengahof 52, 2625 LK Delft, tel. 015-2567603

Girorekening: 3010395 t.n.v. Penn. Etnografische Ver. Delft te Den Haag

China at your doorstep

Lezing in het Engels met dia's door Dirk Jan van den Berg

Door: Studium Generale TU Delft & Etnografische Vereniging Delft

Datum: Woensdag 24 september 2008 om 20.15 uur

Locatie: DOK Vestplein 100 in Delft

De zaal is open vanaf 19.45 uur. De toegang tot deze bijeenkomst is gratis.

Check your pc-mouse, look at the label in your t-shirt, examine your mobile-phone; high chance they are all made in China. China's development is not a far away phenomenon; it will thoroughly affect our part of the world in the years to come. Opinions are oscillating between the extremes whether to perceive China as a threat or as an opportunity. Whatever the outcome of this debate, tables are turning in the world and China will become a lead player in world affairs and economics. Therefore, there is very good reason to dwell on China's development and the course it will take. Dirk Jan van den Berg, ambassador of the Netherlands in China 2005-2007 and currently president of Delft University of Technology, will share his thoughts on China's development and will underline the importance of making international developments more central in our national policy debate.

A photo exhibition by Dirk Jan van den Berg will be on display in DOK, for more information see www.sg.tudelft.nl

Dirk Jan van den Berg is President of Delft University of Technology